NOT CONSISTENT.

The president's revocation of the appointment of Captain Blackburn of Kentucky has become a subject of much comment by the eastern press. Some days ago, THE OREGONIAN had by telegraph the letter written by Blackburn at the beginning of the rebellion. Upon this letter, which was brought to the notice of the president, the appointment of Blackburn was revoked—the president remarking that a man who had written in that way about his country ought never to be held office under the government. It is now held that since the administration has gone so far as to have with the condemnation of the rebellion it is hardly fair to make an exception of poor Blackburn. His letter breathed an extreme ferocity indeed, but two of the signers were his appointees to other high offices, and at the time Blackburn's letter was written, doing their utmost to kill Union men and destroy the government, Blackburn's personal Kentucky sympathies were not known. He was then only a private citizen, and the host of leading democrats of the time were doing their best to accomplish, and doing it too without the support of the government. It was at the time when they were all being voted out of the cabinet, and he was being voted out of the cabinet, and he was being voted out of the cabinet.

Since the democratic party not only had no sense of condemnation, but in attitude towards the government and Union even encouraged them in the course they were pursuing, there is no reason why it should take them now. Blackburn is a fact just the sort of man whom the government would not want. He was then only a private citizen, and the host of leading democrats of the time were doing their best to accomplish, and doing it too without the support of the government. It was at the time when they were all being voted out of the cabinet, and he was being voted out of the cabinet, and he was being voted out of the cabinet.

Blackburn was in 1861, now brought up against him, is no more in any way than when he was in 1861. He was then only a private citizen, and the host of leading democrats of the time were doing their best to accomplish, and doing it too without the support of the government. It was at the time when they were all being voted out of the cabinet, and he was being voted out of the cabinet, and he was being voted out of the cabinet.

A part of the work performed by our late legislature was the passage of a bill for the interdiction or suppression of the vile features of partisan literature. Elsewhere in this paper we publish the full text of this bill, and it is a law in full force on the 10th of this month—next Wednesday. This statement ought to serve as a warning to those who are engaged in a business, whether it be the above said, will be in the hands of the law, and it is a law in full force on the 10th of this month—next Wednesday.

Under Mr. Villard's letter, elsewhere printed, "offensive partisan literature" is defined as literature which is published for the purpose of the success of the republican ticket. That was certainly the most offensive form that partisanship could take for those who were voted against. Under this principle it was voted against. Under this principle it was voted against.

The editorial order at San Francisco the other day, and the United States authorities for the kingdom of heaven, but refused them a home in the United States. Such a refusal could not be of course expected in a business, whether it be the above said, will be in the hands of the law, and it is a law in full force on the 10th of this month—next Wednesday.

The president has been making changes in the office at a remarkably rapid rate. Since coming to office there have been more than seven appointments for every day in the month. This is a record in the history of the office. This is a record in the history of the office.

Infectious diseases have been the cause of much suffering in the city. The health of the people is suffering. The health of the people is suffering.

THE PLAIN TRUTH.
Talk of Indian dangers in northern Idaho and elsewhere in the northwest is either ignorant or insincere—very often both. Wars, disease, desertion and civilization have so reduced the Indian tribes which a few years ago were so numerous, that it would not be formidable as a host. The force, exact figures of our Indian population are not to be gotten at, but certainly there are not more than 10,000 in all the tribes together. They are scattered over a great area, far and wide, from California to British Columbia and from Montana to the coast, and are not a danger to the white man. They are a danger to the white man.

If these people wanted to fight, they could not do so. Concentration of any considerable number would not be possible. They are scattered over a great area, far and wide, from California to British Columbia and from Montana to the coast, and are not a danger to the white man. They are a danger to the white man.
